It's always wise to have an emergency plan in place, just in case you need it. Having your veterinarian's phone number, the contact information for VERGI Emergency & Critical Care Hospital, your pet's medical records (including allergies and the names of any medications he or she may take), and an animal first aid kit on hand are all measures you can take to alleviate the stresses of an emergency.

Please take a few moments to fill out the information below and keep it with your pets records in case of an emergency:

WHAT TO DO IN CASE OF AN EMERGENCY:

First, phone your primary care veterinarian. If they are not available, proceed straight to VERGI

In a pet care emergency, time counts. Once you have determined that your pet requires emergency care, call us at 713-932-9589 and take the following steps:

1. Remain Calm

Protect yourself, animals in pain often bite. Your pet is scared, in pain, and just trying to protect themselves from further injury. Approach them calmly, slowly, and gently. Secure your pet (a kennel or towel works well) and gently get them into the car to come for treatment.

2. Do Not Attempt Home Remedies

Don't endanger your pet's life with some Internet-discovered home remedy! Most of those remedies are wrong! There's a lot of good and bad information out there but, the safest plan is to allow a trained professional to help.

3. Call and let us know you're coming.

This is not a requirement, but rather an opportunity for our staff to be ready and waiting to help your pet when you arrive. The more information you can provide about your pet's emergency, the better prepared we can be to help your pet recover.

4. Driving with an injured pet can be difficult.

Please, drive safely. If possible, get a partner, neighbor, or friend to drive you to our hospital so you can attend to your pet along the way.

Our Veterinarians have advanced training in the emergency care of animals, including severe, life threatening emergencies. Our facility has been specially designed and equipped to handle all types of emergencies
